

LACMA Announces 2017 Art+Film Gala Honoring Mark Bradford and George LucasThe Seventh Annual Event, Held on Saturday, November 4, 2017, Is Co-Chaired by Eva Chow and Leonardo DiCaprio*Presented by Gucci*ART+FILM

(Los Angeles, August 2, 2017)—The Los Angeles County Museum of Art (LACMA) announces the date and honorees of its 2017 Art+Film Gala. On Saturday, November 4, notables from the art, film, fashion, and entertainment industries will gather at LACMA to honor artist Mark Bradford and filmmaker George Lucas. Now in its seventh year, the 2017 Art+Film Gala is co-chaired by LACMA trustee Eva Chow and actor Leonardo DiCaprio, who continue to champion the museum’s film initiatives. Gucci once again shows its invaluable support as the presenting sponsor of the annual event.

“LACMA has enjoyed a long relationship with Mark, from our first purchase of his work in 2002 as part of the museum’s “Art Here and Now” program to the acquisition of his monumental 2013 painting Shoot the Coin. He was also co-curator and artist of our founding exhibition at Charles White Elementary School, which set a new direction for our many education and community programs. And we have been especially inspired by his Leimert Park-based Art + Practice program, in particular his work with foster youth,” said Michael Govan, LACMA CEO and Wallis Annenberg Director. He continued, “George is known worldwide as having made some of the most innovative and beloved films in history. He has also been devoted to collecting a wide variety of narrative visual arts, with his efforts culminating very soon in the construction of a new museum in Exposition Park. George’s epic new museum is one of the greatest cultural philanthropic gifts ever made in Los Angeles, and will benefit local communities as well as encourage a deeper understanding of narrative arts.”

Both Mark Bradford and George Lucas have a shared commitment to education. Bradford has invested in the Los Angeles community with Art + Practice, which brings museum-quality art exhibitions and youth services to Leimert Park through partnerships with museums and foster youth organizations. Lucas has called education the foundation of our democracy and a stepping-stone for youth to reach their full potential. He founded the George Lucas Educational Foundation to identify and share innovative, replicable, and evidence-based approaches to helping K–12 students learn better. The foundation provides real-world information at the parent, teacher, and school level along with community connections to positively impact the course of learning and lifelong achievement.

“I’m honored to co-host this year’s seventh annual Art+Film Gala spotlighting the work of Mark Bradford and George Lucas,” said Gala Co-Chair Eva Chow. “We continue to be grateful to Gucci for their partnership and collaboration as the presenting sponsor, and look forward to supporting another year of art and film at LACMA.”

Proceeds from the annual Art+Film Gala go toward underwriting LACMA’s initiative to make film more central to the museum’s curatorial programming, while also funding LACMA’s broader mission. This includes exhibitions, acquisitions, and educational programming, in addition to screenings that explore the intersection of art and film.

Guggenheim Museum, New York; The Walker Art Center, Minneapolis; The Whitney Museum of American Art, New York; and Hammer Museum, Los Angeles.

About George Lucas

Filmmaker George Lucas was born in 1944 in Modesto, California. Lucas's devotion to timeless storytelling and cutting-edge innovation has resulted in some of the most successful and beloved films of all time, including the Star Wars Saga and Indiana Jones, while also pioneering new digital standards for sophistication in special effects and sound, and inspiring generations of young people to follow their imagination and dreams.

Taking a philanthropic leadership role in applying his technical and storytelling expertise to the classroom, Lucas founded the George Lucas Educational Foundation (Edutopia.org) in 1991 to highlight proven strategies, tools, and resources for creating lifelong learners. Lucas also serves on the board of The Film Foundation and the USC School of Cinematic Arts Board of Councilors.

Some of Lucas's accolades include the National Medal of Technology, the nation's highest award for technological achievement; the National Medal of Arts, the highest award presented to artists and patrons of the arts by the United States Government; the prestigious NAACP Vanguard Award; and the James Smithson Bicentennial Medal.

In 2017, the Los Angeles City Council approved plans to build the Lucas Museum of Narrative Art, which will include galleries, theaters, a library, classrooms, green space, and a café and restaurant. The institution, scheduled to open in 2021 in Exposition Park, will be a one-of-a-kind gathering place to experience art and exhibitions dedicated to the power of visual storytelling across a variety of media, including paintings, illustrations, animation, digital art, comic art, photography, and more. The Lucas family will fully fund the museum's construction, collection, and operating endowment with no cost to taxpayers to build the museum.

About LACMA

Since its inception in 1965, the Los Angeles County Museum of Art (LACMA) has been devoted to collecting works of art that span both history and geography, in addition to representing Los Angeles's uniquely diverse population. Today LACMA is the largest art museum in the western United States, with a collection that includes more than 130,000 objects dating from antiquity to the present, encompassing the geographic world and nearly the entire history of art. Among the museum's strengths are its holdings of Asian art; Latin American art, ranging from masterpieces from the Ancient Americas to works by leading modern and contemporary artists; and Islamic art, of which LACMA hosts one of the most significant collections in the world. A museum of international stature as well as a vital part of Southern California, LACMA shares its vast collections through exhibitions, public programs, and research facilities that attract over one million visitors annually, in addition to serving millions through digital initiatives such as online collections, scholarly catalogues, and interactive engagement. LACMA is located in Hancock Park, 30 acres situated at the center of Los Angeles, which also contains the La Brea Tar Pits and Museum and the forthcoming Academy Museum of Motion Pictures. Situated halfway between the ocean and downtown, LACMA is at the heart of Los Angeles.
