

The Andrew W. Mellon Undergraduate Curatorial Fellowship Program at

LACMA

Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ)

How do I apply to the Mellon Undergraduate Curatorial Fellowship (MUCF) program?

Currently we are not accepting applications to MUCF. When the program resumes, following evaluation and assessment, application guidelines will be posted here.

Why is the MUCF program pausing?

The MUCF will briefly pause in order to conduct a thorough evaluation. After 9 years, it is important for the Mellon Foundation and its partner museums to assess the program's strengths, assets, and opportunities for improvement to ensure that it is making the greatest possible overall impact.

When will the program resume?

We anticipate that the program will resume in late 2023 or early 2024.

Is the MUCF program paused at all partner museums?

Yes, the program as a whole has been paused in order to conduct a thorough evaluation that involves all partners.

Are there other curatorial fellowship opportunities at the museum?

Please check our website at <https://www.lacma.org/jobs> for other opportunities.

How can I be notified when the program resumes?

Please sign up for email updates by sending an email to fellowships@lacma.org, or by checking this webpage in fall of 2023.
