LACMA CELEBRATES EARTH DAY WITH A FULL DAY OF EARTH-FRIENDLY ACTIVITIES FOR ALL AGES

WHAT: The Los Angeles County Museum of Art (LACMA) hosts a day of programming and activities in celebration of Earth Day: Because Earth without Art is just "Eh."

Free general admission will be granted to those who travel to the museum by alternative means of transportation (bike, walk, Metro, etc.). The day will feature sketching from nature, instrument-making with recycled materials, and a guided walkthrough of the natural art on campus.

WHEN & WHERE: Sunday, April 21, 2013
11 am-4 pm

11:30 am and 1:30 pm

Earth Day Tree Walk (North Piazza)
Matt Ritter, botany professor and director of the Cal Poly Plant Conservancy in San Luis Obispo, will lead tours of the trees around LACMA and throughout Hancock Park.

12:30 pm and 2:30 pm

Restaurant Garden (BP Grand Entrance)
As part of its farm-to-table emphasis, Ray's restaurant grows its own herbs and a selection of vegetables. Tour the raised beds and creative gardening solutions on campus.

12:30-3:30 pm

Andell Family Sundays (North Piazza)
Visitors draw from nature, jam with instruments made out of recycled materials, and more.

1 pm and 3 pm

Palm Garden Tours (Andell Family Sundays welcome tent on the North Piazza)
Bilingual Gallery Educator Lluvia Higuera will offer interactive tours of Robert Irwin's Palm Garden.

1:30 pm

The Deep Field: Earth Day Poetry Workshop (LA Times Central Court, in front of Art of the Americas Building)
Join poet Brendan Constantine in viewing the exhibition Compass for Surveyors: 19th Century American Landscapes, followed by a generative workshop for writers of all ages.
